LETTER FROM THE EDITOR

By Kelly John Walker, M.S. | Editor-in-Chief

Since 2021, American parents have paid a heavy price for defending their children.

Americans across the nation were targeted by their own government, including parents who have spoken out at school board meetings—questioning harmful COVID policies, Critical Race Theory indoctrination, and radical gender theory—policies that threaten their children’s wellbeing. They’ve endured FBI surveillance, public smear campaigns, job loss, financial ruin, and even wrongful arrest—and this persecution continues!

Sam Sorbo and I founded the Parents Demanding Justice Alliance (PDJA) to undo this injustice. PDJA stands on the sacred ground of family, fighting to right the wrongs inflicted on parents who dared to speak the truth.

The Dossier Heard Around Washington

On July 15, we organized a historic press conference on Capitol Hill, sponsored by Rep. Andy Ogles, bringing together members of Congress, journalists, and families silenced for too long. Parents from across the country shared their stories, exposing the raw reality of DOJ retaliation and school district abuse.

We formally hand-delivered the detailed Targeted Parents Dossier—a compilation of targeted parent testimonies and evidence—directly to Trump advisor Vince Haley and Weaponization Working Group Director Ed Martin. It documents patterns of abuse, federal coordination with local authorities to intimidate dissenters, and a roadmap for accountability.

The stories of political persecution will infuriate you.

A Blueprint for Justice: The EO

I drafted an Executive Order for the President—designed not only to end the DOJ’s weaponization against parents, but to provide restitution and full public vindication. It calls for a Parental Rights Protection Task Force, formal DOJ investigations, exoneration of targeted parents, and financial relief for those harmed. We put it directly into the hands of those who can deliver it.

The Smoking Gun: AFL’s Confirmation

Shortly after our press conference, America First Legal released internal DOJ documents proving Garland’s October 4, 2021 memo was politically motivated and coordinated with the Biden White House. DOJ attorneys warned it had no legal basis—warnings ignored as counterterrorism tools were deployed against everyday parents. For PDJA, this was vindication: the DOJ was weaponized, parents’ rights were trampled, and those responsible must be held accountable.

LETTER FROM THE EDITOR, Continued

We've earned public support from Reps. Andy Ogles, Paul Gosar, Andy Biggs, and Jim Jordan, and we're aligning with grassroots powerhouses like Moms for Liberty, Mom Army and Moms for America. Our mission isn't to build another brand—it's to ignite a righteous movement that demands restoration and justice.

The Ask: President Trump, Sign the EO!

We are calling on President Trump to sign the Executive Order now—not months from now. The retaliation continues, and the government has a moral obligation to act.

What Comes Next

We'll keep building the case, amplifying stories, and preparing legal strategies, media campaigns, and helping people one-on-one. The Garland memo may be "old news" in Washington, but its consequences are painfully real in homes across America.

The parents who stood up were never dangerous—they were the victims of a police state. With truth on our side and powerful allies assembled, we will not rest until they are made whole again. 🇺🇸

In liberty,

Kelly John Walker
Co-Founder, PDJA

JUSTICE FOR...SOME

Is Justice Only for the Well-Connected?

On August 14, during a press briefing about Adam Schiff's alleged leak of classified information, White House Press Secretary Karoline Leavitt quoted Kash Patel, pledging, "With our partners at DOJ and Congress, we'll have the chance to uncover how political power may have been weaponized and to restore accountability."

Such pledges—from Patel, Pam Bondi, and others—sound promising. But will that justice reach ordinary Americans, or remain the privilege of the well-connected? The weaponization of government under the Biden administration is no longer in question—the evidence is overwhelming. Yet the imbalance is glaring: high-profile figures get swift defense, while middle-class patriots—targeted for exercising their rights—are left to endure the life-shattering fallout of government persecution.

If conservatives call out the privilege of the Left's elites, we must ensure we aren't building a new class of our own.

When Bondi pledged to "back up Elon Musk every way we can," the defense was immediate. Musk didn't have to endure the years-long wait for justice that countless parents and citizens—smeared, investigated, or prosecuted for speaking at school board meetings or attending protests—still face.

Justice shouldn't be for "members only." The same transparency and accountability must apply to an ordinary mom or dad as to a billionaire. This is not about diminishing accountability for the powerful—it's about honoring the Republic's pledge of "liberty and justice for all."

Every citizen deserves equal access to truth and justice. That is why I co-founded Parents Demanding Justice Alliance (PDJA) with Sam Sorbo. We refuse to accept a tiered system of justice.

When leaders promise to "uncover how political power may have been weaponized," that pledge must reach beyond elite circles—to the parent ruined

"The issue today is the same as it has been throughout all history, whether man shall be allowed to govern himself or be ruled by a small elite." - Thomas Jefferson by a false defamation claim, the small-business owner shut down for opposing government narratives, and the whistleblower who lost everything for speaking up. For most middle-class victims of weaponization and lawfare, justice is out of reach. Crushing legal costs, short statutes of limitations, and loopholes shielding officials block their path. Meanwhile, the government wields unlimited taxpayer-funded resources and elite lawyers to grind down any citizen who dares to fight back.

That's why PDJA is urging President Trump to sign our proposed Executive Order—restoring victims of Biden-era targeting and holding perpetrators accountable. Without it, abuses will go unanswered, paving the way for even greater political retribution.

Earlier this month, Bondi appointed Working Group head Ed Martin as special attorney to investigate Schiff and Letitia James. PDJA met with Martin in June on behalf of parents nationwide. On July 15, at a Capitol Hill press conference with Congressman Andy Ogles and Congressman Andy Biggs, advocates and targeted parents delivered our Dossier of Targeted Parents. Yet, no action has been taken. Their cries go unanswered, even as leftist activists double down with fresh waves of targeting.

Our Republic was “conceived in Liberty...,” meant to be a government of the people—not a system reserving justice for the powerful. If justice looks past the people to serve the elite, freedom becomes a gated privilege—and a Republic becomes an oligarchy of the elite.

America is better than that, and it's time we proved it. 🇺🇸

A.J. RICE

A.J. Rice's White Privilege Album Reads Like a Song—and It's Glorious

If “white privilege” were an annoying song loop burrowing into your skull, (Wham’s “Wake Me Up Before You Go-Go” has tormented me for 41 years) the Left would have it blasting from every grocery store speaker and airport television in America. Oh, wait...they pretty much have done that over the last 5+ years.

Fortunately for civilization, A.J. Rice just kicked in the door, threw out the skipping intersectional record, and dropped The White Privilege Album—and it rocks.

For those of us sick of—well, just about everything the Left has been doing to ruin our beautiful Republic—this book is one hell of a good jam! So, sit down and light up your Trump 2028 cigar (I’m kidding...or am I?) and let’s begin, shall we?

A.J. isn’t tiptoeing through the tulips; he’s serving up satire with brass knuckles and a smile. The White Privilege Album laughs in the faces of the Woke mob and dares you to join in.

I dig that Rice wrote this book right before the election sent the blue-hairs stampeding for their safe spaces, back when political correctness was still strutting around in its heyday like a hall monitor with a god complex.

“What I enjoyed the most about this book is Rice’s ability to make tragedy fun,” wrote Brent Hamachek. “If you have a reader on your Christmas gift list who enjoys irreverence, mixed with satire, and liberally smothered in facts, then the newest work offered by A.J. Rice, The White Privilege Album is highly recommended.”

Well said, Brent. Laughter may be the best medicine, but it’s also a next-level weapon to slay the woke mind virus. Rice reminds us that tyrants hate to be laughed at, and the Left relies on fear. Stop being afraid, and you’ve already won half the battle.

Our age of instant information—absent context, perspective, and wisdom—is creating generations of the least original thinkers imaginable. They’ve become one gigantic, race-obsessed herd, too fearful to think for themselves. And as Rice observes, “we live in an absurd age that is becoming as unscientific as any so-called dark age of the past.”

Each chapter of this thoroughly entertaining book is a “track” on this metaphorical album, and every song is a ringer. Rice takes aim at:

- The DEI Industrial Complex, exposing it as a corporate shakedown scheme with a rainbow logo.
- Race Hustlers & Media Hall Monitors who keep selling division like it’s going out of style.
- The “Very Fine People” Hoax, the Left’s favorite skipping track on their playlist of lying greatest hits.

Rice points out that the “right to run for office, the right to free speech, the right to assemble peacefully...all that amounts to white privilege, even if you’re not white or don’t live a life of privilege.”

He reminds readers that humans “kind of suck; slavery is our oldest institution, and it has nothing to do with melanin.” The common denominator of slavery was not race, but economics—something today’s woke historians conveniently omit in their sermonizing.

Rice skewers the modern cult of feelings-over-facts with lines like, “Two plus two equals racism.” And in case you think he’s joking, he doubles down: “Right—in the context of math—either is or is not. The color of one’s opinions do not enter into it.”

And in one of his best sarcastic flourishes: “If one’s sex is fungible—if one can be two (as in they and them)—then why not ‘maths’ rather than just math?”

In a world where humorless “wokesolds” are sucking the joy out of everything—from girlboss superheroes and suspiciously diverse historical movie sets in our movies (to push “the message”) all the way to “queer beer”—laughing it all away like a bizarre nightmare we’re finally waking up from is a form of rebellion and catharsis.

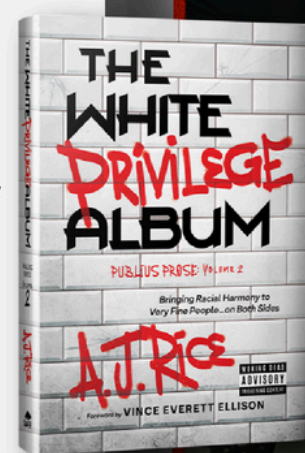

Rice doesn’t ask for permission. He tells you to crank the volume and laugh like the future of the Republic depends on it—because it actually does! As Sun Tzu warned, “An evil enemy will burn his own nation to the ground to rule over the ashes.” That’s Marxism in a nutshell: create chaos, destroy a society, and then try to refashion it into an impossible utopia that always ends up as hell on earth.

And when it comes to higher education, Rice doesn’t pull punches: “Institutions of higher learning are becoming...institutions: places where crazy people are housed. Only instead of being safely tucked away under lock and key and treated, they’re tenured, tartan-covered cranks, paid to propagate their crazy.”

So, take it from a revved-up toxic-male cracker reviewing another of the same ilk: Read this book. Share it. And for God’s sake, laugh your butt off! Who cares if the “New Puritans” of Marxist dogma melt like ice cream bars on a hot day.

To quote Garth Algar in the decidedly politically incorrect Wayne’s World, *“if [they] were an ice cream flavor, [they’d] be pralines and d*ck.”* (Let’s just hope Dairy Queen never rebrands into that kind of a queen.)

Yes, this book preaches to the choir, and that’s a good thing. The choir’s been too quiet lately! The White Privilege Album reminds you it’s okay to laugh, mock, and sing off-key. The Left may still be going “bang-bang-bang”—oh Lord, make it stop—but if we wake up, the woke will go-go. And maybe, just maybe, we’ll drown out their noise with a better song of our own.

AMERICA'S CULTURAL REVOLUTION

By Aaron Miller

Imagine a time when a dictator controls every arm of government—the police, the military, the media. Then rivals appear, and his grip weakens. Those institutions may no longer obey him fully. What tool remains to crush his enemies and reclaim power? The people themselves. Convince them they are righteous, identify an enemy, and unleash them. In the chaos, rivals fall, and control is restored—alongside the ideology the masses have been fed.

This was Mao Tse-tung's Cultural Revolution—a wave of political violence, persecution, and cultural destruction. As his authority waned, Mao bypassed the police, military, and courts, weaponizing the population against itself. Propaganda turned students into informants, children into torturers of their parents, and mobs into destroyers of centuries-old traditions.

That same playbook was used in America only a few years ago.

In May 2020, an ideology long nurtured on college campuses erupted nationwide. Cities burned. Ordinary people were assaulted. Statues fell. Anti-American sentiment poured through the media. Anchors described “fiery but mostly peaceful protests” while journalists and academics rushed to justify the unrest.

Violence was rebranded as the “voice of the unheard,” and glowing profiles of organizers filled the airwaves. Institutions that should have stopped the chaos stood down, choosing ideology over order.

They were biding their time. By January 2021, with political momentum in hand, they advanced to the next phase: openly institutionalizing the persecution of their political enemies.

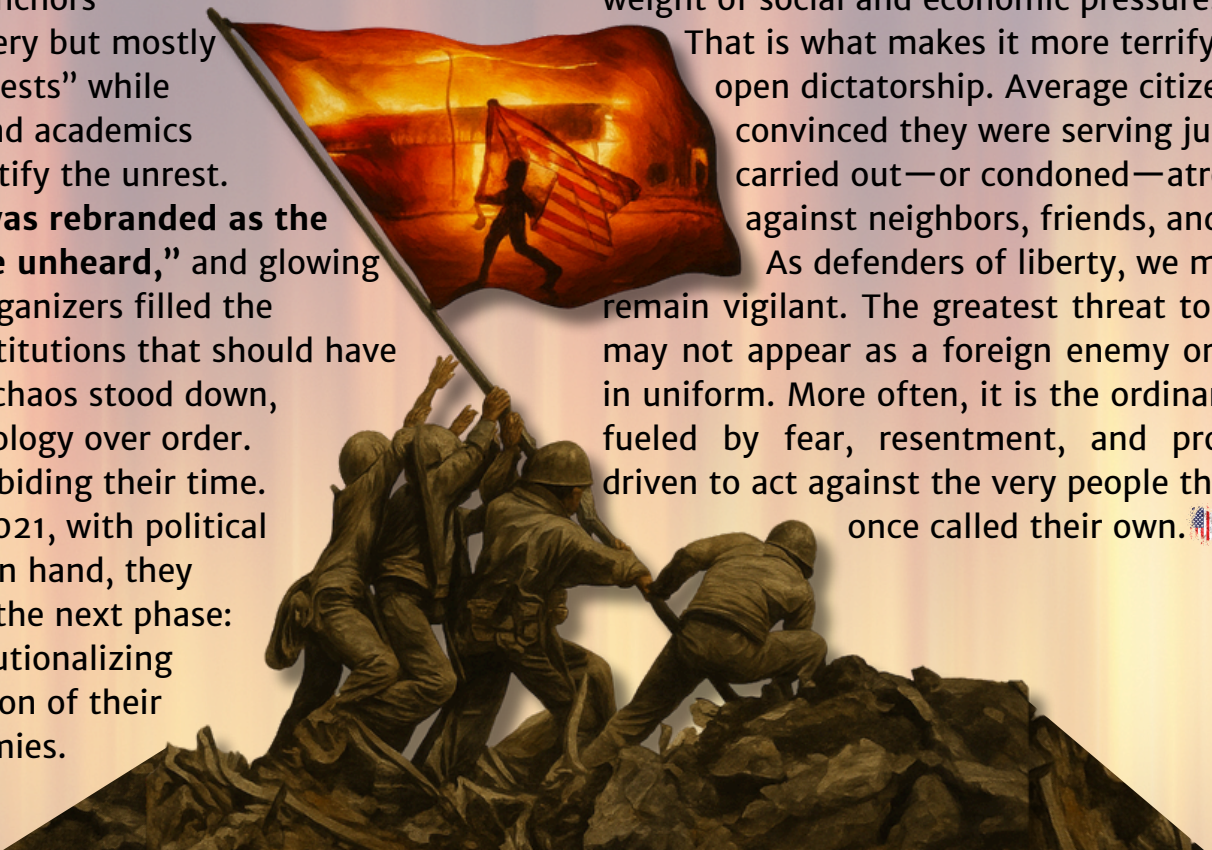

Federal law enforcement hunted down dissidents. Local authorities enforced lockdowns, barred people from dying loved ones, and silenced public dissent. Families fractured over politics and beliefs. Spouses turned on each other. Parents and children stopped speaking.

Private corporations joined the purge. Employees were fired over social media posts or skepticism toward an experimental vaccine. The President, backlit in crimson and flanked by shadowed guards, pounded a podium and warned defiance would be punished. Fear became the “new norm.” Even those merely unconvinced by the prevailing narrative were targeted.

This was not just government tyranny—it was culture as a weapon. The most effective force in that period was not a faceless bureaucracy but ordinary people, misled or malicious, enforcing ideological conformity. Families were torn apart, livelihoods destroyed, and individuals coerced into medical procedures—not at gunpoint, but under the crushing weight of social and economic pressure.

That is what makes it more terrifying than open dictatorship. Average citizens, convinced they were serving justice, carried out—or condoned—atrocities against neighbors, friends, and family.

As defenders of liberty, we must remain vigilant. The greatest threat to freedom may not appear as a foreign enemy or a tyrant in uniform. More often, it is the ordinary person fueled by fear, resentment, and propaganda driven to act against the very people they once called their own. 🇺🇸

VICTORY FOR JUSTICE AIR FORCE GRANTS MILITARY HONORS TO ASHLI BABBITT

Greenville, TX—In a stunning reversal of what many have called a shameful injustice, the U.S. Air Force has finally agreed to grant Military Funeral Honors to Ashli Babbitt—the Air Force veteran gunned down inside the U.S. Capitol on January 6, 2021.

The announcement came August 23, 2025, at the 2nd Annual 1A Film Fest in Greenville, Texas, a gathering dedicated to exposing propaganda and censorship. Co-host David Sumrall (@HelpStopHate), speaking on behalf of the Pentagon, delivered the news to a packed Texan Theater, with Babbitt's mother, Micki Witthoeft (@michellewittho1), in attendance.

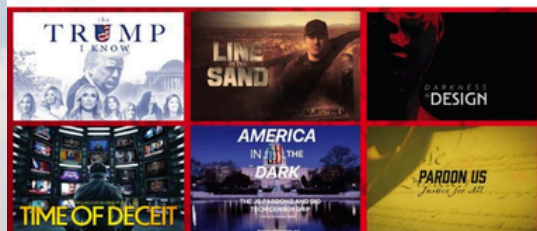

The audience rose in a thunderous standing ovation—an outpouring of gratitude and vindication for a woman many believe was murdered and then smeared by the very government she once served.

For years, Ashli Babbitt's name has been a rallying cry for Americans demanding accountability and truth. The Air Force's decision is not just an overdue honor—it's a signal that persistence pays off, and that the voices of patriots will not be silenced.

The Renaissance of Freedom

America's greatest danger today is not only the weaponization of government—it's the apathy and ignorance that allow it to continue. "No people will tamely surrender their liberties, nor can any be easily subdued, when knowledge is diffused, and virtue is preserved," warned Samuel Adams. We cannot preserve freedom if we no longer recognize when it's being stolen. Too many Americans have traded critical thought for curated feeds and empty outrage. That decay is exactly what oppressive regimes count on—a distracted populace is easier to control.

History warns us: strip away truth, rewrite the past, and isolate the individual until resistance seems impossible. Frederick Douglass called knowledge "the pathway from slavery to freedom." Today, that path is blocked by misinformation, revisionist history, and media collusion with the powerful.

True freedom is more than the absence of chains; it is the presence of justice. It is the unshakable belief that truth still matters, that virtue still matters, and that the Constitution still matters. But these are not self-sustaining. They require citizens who will not just remember their rights, but will actively defend them—at the ballot box, in the public square, and in the courts of law.

That is why FreedomTalk Magazine, the Journal of Truth & Virtue, exists—to help make us a great people again by promoting a renaissance of mind and morality. We are committed to reviving the knowledge, courage, and virtue necessary for a free society to flourish.

If we fail to confront these abuses, they will become the blueprint for the future. The hour is late, but the fight is not over—if we choose to stand, we can become a truly great nation once more. 🇺🇸

When is Defying the Law Justified?

In a shocking admission, Alachua County, Florida school board member Tina Certain bragged about breaking the law to keep sexually explicit books in public schools, declaring, “We live in a nation laws, but obeying the law ain’t always the right thing to do.”

America’s founders understood that the law exists to protect our God-given rights, and that unjust laws—those violating Higher Law—should be resisted.

They knew well these words by first-century Roman Orator, Cicero: “If the temporary masters of the state are unjust—that is, if they act contrary to the law of nature—men possessing right reason are under no moral obligation to obey them.”

Scripture is also clear: when man’s law contradicts God’s, “we must obey God rather than men” (Acts 5:29). Romans 13 commands submission to rightful authority, but not compliance with evil. Governing power is legitimate only when it serves as “God’s servant for your good” (Romans 13:4). When it violates the Creator’s Higher Law, resistance is not optional—it is required.*

But that’s not what this school board member was talking about. In their quest for cultural hegemony, the Left has twisted the valid justifications for civil disobedience, urging defiance, not of tyrannical laws, but of valid laws that safeguard parents’ natural right to direct their children’s upbringing. It is a dangerous inversion: using the rhetoric of liberty to dismantle liberty itself.

When leaders openly boast about breaking laws that protect parental rights, they are declaring war on the family. This is how far the education establishment will go—defying parents, defying the law, and daring anyone to stop them—all to advance an agenda that sexualizes children and undermines parental authority.

Defying the law is justified when tyrants make laws violating the Higher Law of Natural Rights, but laws protecting those rights must be upheld at all costs. 🇺🇸

“Whenever the people are well-informed, they can be trusted with their own government.” -TJ

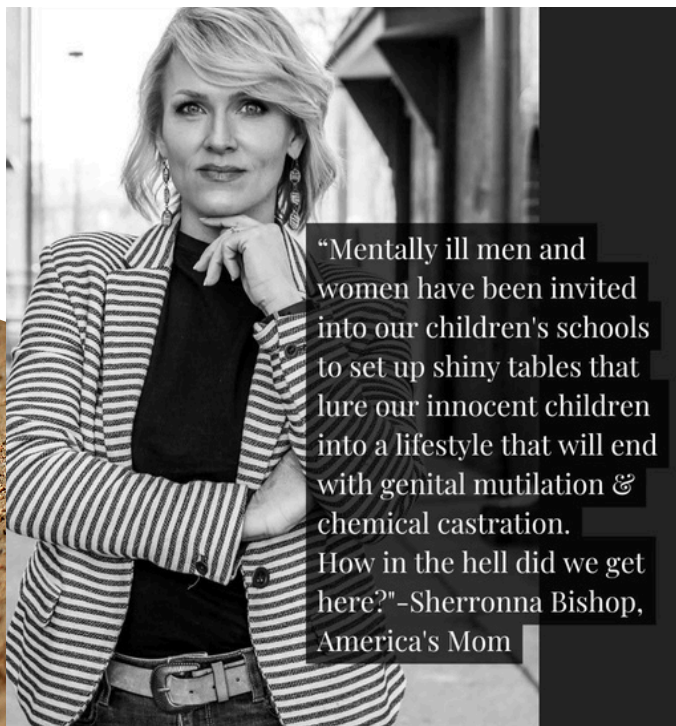

*The Hebrew midwives defied Pharaoh’s command to kill infants and were blessed (Exodus 1:17–21); Daniel prayed despite a royal ban (Daniel 6:10); and Shadrach, Meshach, and Abednego refused to bow to Nebuchadnezzar’s idol (Daniel 3:16–18).

The Root of Government Weaponization: Consolidated Power

Outrage over the previous DOJ's "weaponization of government" appears to have reached a fever pitch. In one of his dismissal letters, FBI Director Patel argued that it was the FBI agent's "poor judgment" and "lack of impartiality" that led "to the political weaponization of government." [i] Unfortunately, this "weaponization" is merely a symptom of a much bigger constitutional issue.

Besides, the attempts at reform within the DOJ and FBI will easily be undone with the next Administration. The only way to fix the "weaponization" problem permanently is to return to a strict fidelity to our Constitution's basic underlying principle of deconsolidation of governmental powers.

The "general government" under the U.S. Constitution, Madison explained, was not "a consolidated government." If it had been consolidated, he continued, its "power and authority would extend to all cases" and "usurpation might be expected to the fullest extent." [ii] In other words, the Framers gave us a Constitution where government's powers were severely limited. Over the last 150 years or so, our politicians and judges have been undermining this basic, fundamental, constitutional principle to the point where it no longer exists.

As such, we have become nothing more than a "spectacle of turbulence and contention" [iii] where politicians hypocritically extol the virtues of a society governed by the supposed "rule of law," while they ignore the "Supreme Law" of the land. Originally, our U.S. Constitution created a Federal Government with very few and defined powers. Today, however, our U.S. Constitution has become nothing more than a façade for a consolidated Federal Government.

Under our U.S. Constitution, Madison explained that the nation would be "broken into so many

by Madame Publius

parts, interest and classes of citizens, that the rights of individuals” would never be in danger of oppression.[i] However, when government consolidates unwarranted powers, there is nothing that can stop it from attacking its own citizens much like we saw during the Biden Administration.

Alexander Hamilton echoed this sentiment —“An entire consolidation of the States into one complete national sovereignty would imply an entire subordination of the parts; and whatever powers might remain in them, would be altogether dependent on the general will.”[ii] This is where we are today. The states are mere vassals of the Federal Government because it has consolidated states’ powers in direct violation of the Tenth Amendment.

Madison put it this way—“The powers delegated by the proposed Constitution to the Federal Government, are few and defined. Those which are to remain in the State Governments are numerous and indefinite.”[iii] Madison then went on to spell out those “few and defined” powers so as to leave no room for speculation. The Federal Government’s powers, he explained, “will be exercised principally on external objects, as war, peace, negotiation, and foreign commerce.”[iv]

Notice that Madison’s list did NOT include anything like education, health, the environment, medicine, the economy, alcohol, tobacco, firearms, drugs, and everything else the Federal Government regulates today. All of these internal objects, Madison went on to explain, were reserved for the states, whose powers “extend to all the objects which, in the ordinary course of affairs, concern the lives, liberties, and properties of the people.”[i]

In the vernacular of Hamilton, “there is not a syllable”[ii] in our U.S. Constitution which directly empowers the Federal Government to regulate any aspect of our daily lives, beyond protecting us from external dangers. Outside of enforcing our borders, regulating international commerce, and handling disputes between the various states in the Union, there is very little power that the Federal Government is legitimately authorized to exercise under our Constitution.

What the D.C. crowd says, while talking to us from behind their “specious masks” so as to hide “their dangerous ambition” which is “the introduction of despotism,”[iii] you should not believe any of it. The hard cold FACT is that there is no authorization in our Constitution for the Federal Government to regulate our education, our healthcare, and everything else they have their hands on today. Their only real, constitutionally authorized job is to secure and protect our borders from invasion and to fight our Constitutional wars. Everything else is left to the states under our Constitution.

Unfortunately, we’ve allowed our government to consolidate powers reserved to the states. This is the real reason we have what is now being called the “weaponization of government”. The Framers used a much different word to describe this phenomenon —“The accumulation [or consolidation] of all powers...may justly be pronounced the very definition of tyranny.”[iv]

Until we fix the consolidation problem, none of the reforms in the DOJ or the FBI will ever have a lasting, permanent impact on our liberties. We have to return to the basic principles of deconsolidation of governmental powers, if we are truly serious about stopping the tyranny in D.C. for good.

The Rights They Hope You've Forgotten

The Ninth Amendment & the Fight Against Government Weaponization

by Kelly Walker

In the America our Founders envisioned, government was meant to be the servant, never the master. But in the shadow of Biden's weaponization against citizens, that principle was shattered. Federal agencies targeted political dissenters, concerned parents, and whistleblowers with investigations, public smears, and prosecutions designed to intimidate and destroy.

Our nation has never faced such extreme state-sponsored repression. And though Donald Trump now holds office, the long shadow of this domestic persecution still looms—unchecked in some cases, and even worsening where it has gone unaddressed.

The same arrogance driving these abuses justified the COVID-era decrees, mandates, and orders—a belief that rights are “granted” by government. The truth is far older and far deeper: your rights are Natural Rights—God-given, pre-political, and beyond the reach of any administration.

That truth is enshrined in the often-overlooked Ninth Amendment, which safeguards a “realm of personal liberty which the government cannot enter.”

James Madison and the Framers knew the Bill of Rights could never fully enumerate the vast field of freedoms the people inherently possess. The Ninth was their shield against those who would exploit any “unlisted” right as an open door for tyranny.

Legal scholar Daniel A. Farber put it plainly: the Bill of Rights was “illustrative, not complete.” The Framers saw Natural Law as hard, enforceable law—not a decorative ideal. Madison warned that without the Ninth, federal power could consume every right not explicitly written down, a list that by nature could never be complete.

Among those unenumerated rights is the sovereign authority of parents to direct the upbringing, education, and moral guidance of their children. That's not a privilege—it's a Natural Right predating any form of government. Our sons and daughters are not “mere creatures of the state” to be molded by bureaucrats—they are entrusted to us by God. Yet in some school districts, the oppressors are doubling down, pushing radical policies and finding new ways to shut parents out of decision-making.

The same mentality drives today's broader weaponization: if they can sidestep our Natural Rights in one area, they can sidestep them anywhere—raiding homes, freezing accounts, prosecuting political opponents, and defaming citizens to silence dissent.

Ninth Amendment

The enumeration in the Constitution, of certain rights, shall not be construed to deny or disparage others retained by the people.

"The enumeration in the Constitution, of certain rights, shall not be construed to deny or disparage others retained by the people."

For most victims, legal remedies are out of reach. They are blocked by the crushing cost of litigation, short statutes of limitations, and legal loopholes designed to shield officials from accountability. Meanwhile, the government's arsenal includes endless taxpayer-funded resources and powerful lawyers who can grind down any private citizen daring to fight back. This imbalance of power means that, for thousands of Americans, justice is not just delayed—it's impossible under the current system.

That's why PDJA is urgently pressing for our proposed Executive Order—a decisive step to restore the victims of Biden-era targeting and ensure perpetrators face real consequences. Without such action, these abuses will remain unresolved, setting a precedent for even greater violations when the next wave of political retribution comes.

Millions of Americans have already been targeted and politically persecuted for reasons ranging from matters of faith and political beliefs, to simply defending their children. The present administration's failure to act decisively is emboldening these abusers, signaling that there will be no consequences.

If we do not hold the perpetrators accountable now—and in some cases, make arrests—they will return to power with even greater determination to crush their opponents and strip away our most fundamental liberties.

Justice delayed is justice denied, and every day without action only emboldens the leftist bullies. We remain confident, however, that the President will stand with the American people and take decisive action to end this abuse once and for all. 🇺🇸

THE EXONERATION OF KIRK MOORE AND THE TRIAL OF PAM BONDI

By Clayton J. Baker, M.D. | Brownstone Institute, July 16, 2025 (Excerpt)

Dr. Mike Moore's exoneration represents a victory not just for one man—but for conscience, autonomy, and resistance to state overreach. His case embodies the essence of freedom: the moral right to act when laws themselves are unjust.

DOJ Charges Against Dr. Moore

In January 2023, during the height of COVID-19 mandates, the U.S. Department of Justice—then under AG Merrick Garland—indicted Dr. Michael Kirk Moore, a Utah plastic surgeon, along with his medical corporation and three co-defendants. He was accused of:

- Conspiracy to defraud the United States, for issuing nearly 2,000 fraudulent COVID-19 vaccination record cards without administering vaccines.
- Conspiracy to convert, sell, convey, and dispose of government property—allegedly destroying over $28,000 in government-issued COVID-19 vaccines.
- Administration of saline injections to minors, at parental request, so children would believe they had been vaccinated.

Although Dr. Moore pleaded not guilty, federal prosecutors sought penalties totaling up to 35 years in prison.

Trial and Mounting Support

The trial began in Salt Lake City in July 2025. Outside the courthouse, crowds rallied, waving signs like “Dr. Moore is a hero, not a criminal,” while Utah lawmakers denounced the prosecution as federal overreach.

Dr. Michael Kirk Moore

Support poured in from prominent voices such as Representative Marjorie Taylor Greene, Senator Mike Lee, and even Health Secretary Robert F. Kennedy Jr.

Attorney General Bondi Steps In

Just three days into the trial, AG Pam Bondi intervened, instructing the DOJ to dismiss all charges. She publicly declared, “Dr. Moore gave his patients a choice when the federal government refused to do so. He did not deserve the years in prison he was facing. It ends today.” The dismissal was officially filed “in the interests of justice.”

Dr. Moore's journey from prosecution to exoneration highlights freedom's foundational values:

- Conscience Over Compliance: He acted on deeply held beliefs, offering alternatives during a time of perceived coercion.
- Civic Resistance: His case became a rallying point, uniting grassroots voices against government overreach.
- Power of Leadership Shift: Bondi's decision underscores how leadership aligned with conscience can correct injustice.

As these events unfolded, the state itself reaffirmed that coercive policies—such as forced vaccinations—have since been found unconstitutional or overturned through court challenges.

Dr. Moore's vindication thus symbolizes the triumph of individual agency and moral clarity over institutional overreach. 🇺🇸

"It is with deep sadness that I share the passing of our friend and fellow warrior, Sergeant U.S. Army (Retired) Boone Cutler. Boone was a voice for truth, for patriots, and for veterans everywhere. His life's work was to give hope and strength to those suffering from Post Traumatic Stress, Traumatic Brain Injuries, and the unseen scars of war. He was truly a brother to all who have borne the weight of battle.

Boone's legacy lives on in The Spartan Pledge: "I will not take my own life by my own hand until I talk to my battle buddy first. My mission is to find a mission to help my warfighter family." This vow remains a lifeline for veterans and a testament to Boone's relentless mission to save lives and ensure no one was left behind.

As we mourn, we honor his warrior spirit and renew our promise to look out for one another. Boone's fight continues through us—remember his words: "Control your emotions, protect your mind, and remember the mission."

Boone lived Isaiah 6:8: "Then I heard the voice of the Lord saying, Whom shall I send? And who will go for us? And I said, Here am I. Send me!" He loved the Lord, and his life reflected that faith. Say a prayer today for Boone, his family, and our nation." -General Mike Flynn

VINDICATED

A LIFE-CHANGING EVENT
IN LAS VEGAS

BY JOE HOFT

On August 8th-10th, hundreds of American patriots gathered in Las Vegas at the Ahern Hotel and Convention Center for the “VINDICATED” event. The planning for the event started earlier this year but when Tulsi Gabbard announced that she was forwarding documentation of a conspiracy against the Trump Administration a few months ago, after announcing the guest speakers at the event, we agreed to change the name to “VINDICATED”.

This event was backed by the years of service and reporting by The Gateway Pundit (TGP). My brother Jim started TGP in 2004 and worked daily for two decades reporting on what he thought needed to be reported. It wasn't until a decade later that Jim left his job and began writing at TGP for a living.

I watched from afar having traveled the world with work visiting and performing work at glamorous cities around the globe and eventually landing in Hong Kong. We talked everyday and eventually I began writing for the Pundit in 2016. We both loved candidate Trump and thought he was just what we needed as President after the awfully destructive Obama years.

This led to me writing full time with Jim starting in 2020, helping the site reach new heights. Throughout the past decade starting in the Obama years, conservative media was attacked and none more than the TGP. Others in the medical field, in law, in politics, and in government service, were attacked, arrested, and defamed based on lies.

Evil hates the truth because God is the truth. This is why we were all attacked.

The group assembled at the VINDICATED event were great American icons who the Deep State tried to destroy. We knew going in we wanted to give awards to General Flynn, America's Mayor Rudy Giuliani, and Roger Stone. We invited others like Lara Logan, Mike Davis, Mel K, Christina Bobb, Professor David Clements, Dr. Simone Gold, Captain Chris Kuehne, Mike Lindell and many others (See entire list and agenda here.)

Various topics were covered from the 2020 Election, the Deep State, the World Economic Forum, Jan 6, COVID, and more. Each subject and speaker presented seamlessly as the event progressed. It all fit together.

It really was like to all who participated a blessed event.

Awards were given to 100-year-old World War II survivor Bill Dillon, as well as Rudy, Flynn and Stone. 🇺🇸

My Friend Charlie

Where do we start?

Charlie and I shared endless humor and teasing. We quoted Seinfeld constantly—he knew the show better than I did. That was Charlie: brilliant, quick, and full of life.

I was at the gym when I got the text I could not imagine. It hit me like a punch. I sat with my head in my hands and wept. My friend Charlie is a martyr. He was murdered for his faith in Jesus—killed by forces that hate truth, love, and God.

I met Charlie when he was 24, with his fiancée Erika, now his widow and the mother of his children. Over burgers in Manhattan, he told me my books had inspired him. I knew my influence was nothing compared to the staggering talent God had given him. Charlie was humble, brilliant, and a true gift from God.

I never doubted Charlie would one day be president—and a great one. His natural gifts were astonishing. At the center of it all was his bold faith in Jesus, which guided everything he did. That's why I don't mourn as the world mourns: Charlie is with Jesus. He fulfilled his assignment and now hears the words we all long for: "Well done, good and faithful servant."

God is sovereign. Jesus lived to 33; Bonhoeffer and MLK Jr. to 39. God could have spared them—and Charlie—but He did not. He allows evil, and still calls us to trust Him. Even through horror, we praise Him, knowing He is good.

Charlie's murder recalls JFK, MLK, and RFK—leaders who gave millions hope, cut down in cold blood. It is inconceivable. Over decades, the left has fallen from noble causes to raw power and self-gratification. Their creed seems to be: "I want freedom without consequences, and if there are consequences, I want the right to destroy them." When confronted by truth—whether an unborn baby or a brilliant man exposing their emptiness—they will stoop to murder.

May Charlie's death wake some up, leading them out of the abyss.

We are in a spiritual war. The left lies that Christians seek violence. We do not. Our weapons are prayer, truth, and love. The most radical thing we can do is pray for our enemies and proclaim Jesus. If Charlie's death makes us bolder, God's purposes will be served.

God is with us, and we will win this war—but there are casualties. Charlie is one. His death reminds us why we fight: to spread the truth and love of God and to show we will not return hate with hate. If we die, we step into the presence of the One who is Truth and Love.

Resolve to give yourself wholly to Jesus. That's what Charlie did. That's what he would want you to do. It's why you were born. 🇺🇸

God bless you, and God bless America.

The film lays out the parallels between early 1930's Nazi Germany and other totalitarian regimes with what is happening in America today and how the church has been mostly silent facing this evil.

Eric and several leading conservative voices of today, explain how cultural Marxism has taken over America, including the church.

This film is a wake-up call to the church to stand up and speak out against the evil that is manifesting in our country.

Our cast gives practical examples on how to take action and turn our country back to freedom, liberty, and ultimately, God Himself.

Homage to Charlie Kirk

Charlie was a friend. He was a friend to many. And he touched many more. I will miss him. I know the left thought that by killing Charlie, they would make us cower in fear. They are wrong. Charlie's death was not in vain. We will move forward with renewed purpose and faith. And Charlie will not be forgotten. God rest his soul.

-Jim Hoft, Gateway Pundit

"Charlie Kirk was fearless, loving, compassionate, powerful and so many other qualities that words couldn't put it together. He started the true turning point in our youth. To an amazing father husband man and son, and voice of the youth thank you."

-Karambir Singh, Student

"Our hearts are heavy with grief over the loss of our brother, Charlie Kirk. He fearlessly stood for Jesus Christ, defended God's truth, and championed the freedoms God has given us. He was violently taken because he would not compromise, because he proclaimed the Gospel boldly, and because he fought for the very freedoms that allow Americans to debate, share ideas, and educate the next generation. This cowardly act is an attack not just on Charlie, but on the truth and liberty he lived to defend. Yet we will not be silenced. Charlie's courage, faith, and unwavering commitment to God's Word shine brighter than ever, calling us to rise up, speak truth boldly, educate and equip the young in righteousness and patriotism, and live unashamed for Christ. His life reminds us that standing for truth comes at a cost, but it is a cost worth bearing. We lift Erica and their children in prayer, asking the Lord to be their refuge, strength, and comfort in this time of sorrow." For to me, to live is Christ and to die is gain. Philippians 1:21
